Pukekiwiriki is a volcanic landform (a breached explosion crater and tuff ring), located at the end of the Waiouru Peninsula, on the north side of Otara Creek, at its exit to the Tamaki River (directly opposite the power station). As a result of submissions made by the Volcanic Cones Society, the proposed Highbrook Drive was moved slightly and most of the volcanic landform is within an attractive park at the end of the peninsula.

Highbrook Business Park is a world-class mixed-use development that brings people and industry together in an exceptional natural landscape. Encompassing 107 meticulously planned hectares, Highbrook incorporates a business town, retail hub and commercial services - all just 18 minutes from Auckland's CBD.
